MANY TO GO TO MEETING AT SANFORD

BOOSTER GATHERING FOR DEEPER WATER AT INLET

NEW SMYRNA ALSO TO BE WELL REPRESENTED AND PART OF CARS ARE TO COME BY WAY OF DAYTONA.

Considerable interest is being aroused in Daytona and vicinity in the movement for deeper water at Mosquito Inlet and a determined effort is being made by the board of trade to have this city well represented at a mass meeting in Sanford next Thursday night.

The board of trade, business men and citizens of New Smyrna are thoroughly aroused over the proposition, as the cutting away of the bar at the inlet would mean much to that town, and the neighboring city will have a large number of representatives at the gathering in Sanford this week. There will be several automobile loads of representative citizens from New Smyrna present at the booster gathering Thursday night, and these boosters are also anxious Daytona should be well represented at the meeting.

The New Smyrna contingent expects to start for Sanford about 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon. Part of the machines will go direct from New Smyrna to Sanford by way of the Osteen ferry, and the others, the narrow tread cars, will come to Daytona and proceed to Sanford by way of DeLand and Beck's ferry. These cars will reach Daytona about 3:30 o'clock and hope to be accompanied from this city by a large number of cars.

AVIATOR GRAY STARTS HIS FLIGHT HERE THIS AFTERNOON

MAN WHO HAS BEEN WAITING
AT ST. AUGUSTINE SOME TIME TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THE WIND.

Favored by a strong wind, Aviator George Gray, who has been at St. Augustine for some time, planned to start his flight from the Ancient City to Daytona between 3 and 4 o'clock this afternoon, according to word received by the Daily News this afternoon.

The message was filed at St. Augustine at noon today and stated that if the weather was favorable the flight to Daytona would be started as planned.

Barring accident and with the strong wind helping the aviator should reach Daytona around 5 o'clock.

Messrs. Jesse and George Bilger and their wives returned from Eau Gallie, yesterday afternoon and are again with Mr. and Mrs. David Karick at their home on North Beach street.

MRS. MILLER GETS $500 PER MONTH

WILL OF LATE IRA H. MILLER
JUST FILED FOR PROBATE

INSTRUMENT EXECUTED AT COLUMBUS, OHIO, AND BROTH-ER, THERON B. MILLER IS THE TRUSTEE.

By the will of the late Ira H. Miller, filed for probate this week, the widow is given an income of $500 per month from the trust estate during her lifetime, and at her death the estate is to be divided among the living children of Theron B. Miller, brother of the deceased.

The will was executed at Columbus, Ohio, August 3, 1911, and J. R. Downey and John K. Kennedy are the witnesses. Theron B. Miller, brother, is named as trustee. Inventory of the estate is waived, as is the requirement of a bond for the executor and trustee. The decedent gave Ponce Park as his legal residence.

BRIDGE ON CANAL NOT FAVORED

COUNCIL COMMITTEE FINDS SENTIMENT MUCH AGAINST IT

COLLECTOR REPORTS MORE THAN $4,000 COLLECTED FROM OCCUPATIONAL LICENSES THIS YEAR.

Although no regular report was submitted by the special committee to which was referred the petition from the Arcade company for permission to bridge over the north canal, and asking the city to pay half the expense, Alderman Mills, chairman of the committee, stated to the council at the regular meeting last night, that the members of the committee had found sentiment very strongly against permitting the Arcade company to make a road out of the canal.

Marcus H. Rogers, who owns property abutting the canal on the south, was present to make a personal objection to the council against permitting such action. Mr. Rogers said that if the proposed action was to give the Arcade company a place to store its fire fighting apparatus he could not see the advantage of bridging the canal for a distance of 270 feet, when 15 or 20 feet would give plenty of room for such storage.

It was stated at the council meeting that if the city wishes to give permission for the canal to be covered, one man had made an offer of $1,000 for the privilege of erecting a building over the canal and retaining a lease on it for a term of years.

The special committee, to which was also referred the petition from the fire department asking that some action toward the purchase of

WHY ISN'T THE RUBBISH REMOVED?

J. W. SHIELDS DECLARES IT IS A DISGRACE TO THE CITY

SUGGESTS THAT AUTHORITIES
SHOULD EITHER DO THE WORK
AS AGREED OR HAVE OTHERS
DO IT.

Editor Daily News: I, with many other residents of Daytona, would be pleased to learn just where we stand in the matter of removing rubbish from our parkage, when it is placed there according to instructions received. We place such rubbish, as required, to be removed Friday morning, but for unknown reasons this is rarely done, and we wish to know the reason. We do not pretend to know who is responsible, but we would suggest that the work be done or the bluff called and residents be notified to remove it themselves.

As the matter now stands we are subjected to the disagreeable condition of having unsightly depositories for rubbish standing in front of our places for several days in mid-season, which is a disgrace to any decent community. Let those in authority either instruct residents to attend to it themselves, or do as they agree to do and remove it at the time stated.

A ride over the resident streets during the past few days must have been anything but edifying to a visitor, and a mighty poor advertisement for the prettiest winter resort in the world. It might be well to add to the "prettiest winter resort in the world" sign at the depot, "with the exception that from three to four days each week our beautiful streets are littered with unsightly barrels and boxes, filled with all imaginable disagreeable rubbish."

The result of this is that a visitor coming to Daytona for the first time will not see or remember the beauties of the streets, but will ever remember the dirty and offensive barrels and boxes standing where they are most conspicuous.

I would suggest that if the bluff of removing it is to be kept up, this work might be done just as cheaply at night as during the day time, and if for good reasons the entire streets can not be cleaned in one day, then the work be done on streets designated at certain times, and attended to when that time comes.

As residents and well wishers we should all be interested in this matter of permitting garbage to stand on the parkage in front of our residences, as it is a stigma on the innocent owner of the property, and should, in all decency, be abolished as an inexcusable nuisance, and a serious detriment to the town.

J. W. SHIELDS.

NATIONAL CIVIC FEDERATION HOLDING ANNUAL CONVENTION

SEVERAL BILLS HAVE BEEN DRAFTED FOR PRESENTATION TO CONGRESS AND TO STATE LEGISLATURES.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28—The 13th annual meeting of the National Civic Federation convened here this morning at the Hotel Astor. The sessions will last two days, during which time the association will take up a number of bills which have been drafted by the various committees, and which it is proposed to submit to congress or to the 33 state legislatures which are in session this winter.

The most important matter that came before the association today was the report of the department on industrial mediation law.

This report carried with it the draft of two bills, one to be submitted to congress, which provides for the amendment of the Erdman federal mediation act, and the other to be presented to the various state legislatures in an effort to secure uniformity by the state laws relative to the mediation of industrial disputes.

Other tentative bills which are presented to the association for endorsement today covered a wide field, the subjects of the new proposed legislation being: Workmen's compensation; accident prevention; pensions for federal, state and municipal employees; reform in legal procedure; regulation of public utilities; regulation of industrial corporations; regulation of the manufacture and sale of drugs and food products; the commercial measures of the commissioners on uniform state laws.

VALUE OF FORESTS PROVED

In Addition to Conserving Rainfall, They Are of Other Aids to Agriculture.

While the rainfall of any region is dependent on dynamic influences in the atmosphere, and can be affected only in a very slight degree, if at all, by the extent of that region covered by forests, it has certainly been shown that woods and forests conserve rainfall. The briefest consideration indicates the likelihood that this must be so, because vegetation and the ground covered with vegetation absorb water and allow it to percolate slowly to the lower levels, whereas on bare ground the rainwater runs quickly away to sea. But trees serve another purpose in aid of agriculture; because, as some recent experiments show, they act as windbreaks and shelters to growing crops. The distance to which the protective influence of trees extends is estimated at twenty times their height, though complete protection, such as might be afforded to growing wheat in a gale, extends only to a distance eight times the height of the trees. Partial protection is about twelve to fourteen times the height. They also check evaporation of rainfall, their influence extending five times their height to windward and eighteen times to leeward, and preserve as much as 70 per cent. of moisture ordinarily lost. Finally, their influence heats both air and soil, increasing the diurnal range of temperature by as much as nine degrees Fahrenheit.

Ireland's Big Cavern.

A Frenchman made the first complete exploration of one of the largest caverns in the world, that at Mitchelstown, Ireland. The explorer was Martel, who is also famous for his discoveries in the caverns of France. The Mitchelstown cavern is formed in limestone, and is remarkable for the number and extent of its connected passages, which, when plotted on a chart resemble the streets of a city. The length of the cave is about a mile and a quarter, and it contains some animal inhabitants, including a species of spider, which are peculiar to it and have their entire existence within its recesses.—The Sunday Magazine.

History as She's Told.

When Jean Leon Gerome's painting of the dead Caesar was on exhibition in the Corcoran gallery a Chicago visitor heard this conversation between a woman and her ten-year-old son, who were looking at the stricken Caesar lying at the foot of Pompey's statue while the conspirators were disappearing in the distance. "Mamma," said the boy, "what is the matter with the man?" "When you get older," answered the mother, "you will read all about it in history. The man is Julius Caesar. He has just been shot by Mark Anthony."

The Youth in Politics.

Professor Blackie was in favor of a higher age limit for parliamentary candidates than is at present enforced. "I remain decidedly of opinion," he writes, "that no man ought to open his mouth on the hustings or at public dinners till he is at least 30 years of age. Young men are absolutely incapable of political wisdom; it is the fruit of time and cannot be extemporized from the young ebullience of the brain like a brilliant lyric poem or a dashing novel."

Keeping a Fortune.

It is one of the significant signs of the times that there is an ever-increasing business of "looking after" estates, insuring and dispensing incomes to the idle heirs and the incompetent. The question is often asked, "Why should he work? His father left him rich." The work of keeping a fortune is, in reality, a business in itself, and sometimes it is more difficult than the making. To be employed in that business is nobler than haunting hotel lobbies or sitting in club windows.—New York Mail.

Local Pride.

"Why do you insist on investing your money away from your home town?" "Well," replied Farmer Corn-tassel, "I've got a good deal of local pride, I have, and I regard the people in this here township as bein' so smart that none of 'em is goin' to let any real bargains git away from him."

A Benedict's Idea.

Mrs. Benham—All the world loves a lover.
Benham—Sure! A man can be poor any time if he is willing to make a fool of himself.—Boston Globe.

Anecdote of Sheridan.

When Richard Brinsley Sheridan was in distress in early life one of his resources was that of writing for the fugitive publications of the day, in which he was materially assisted by his wife, and many years after his entrance into the sphere of politics he was heard to say that "if he had stuck to law he believed he should have done as much as his friend Tom Hawkins; but," continued he, "I had no time for such studies."

"Mrs. Sheridan and myself were often obliged to keep writing for our daily leg or shoulder of mutton; otherwise we should have had no dinner." One of his friends, with whom he conversed thus, wittily replied, "Then I perceive it was a joint concern."

Paraguay's "Spider Lace."

Missionaries in Paraguay more than 200 years ago taught the native Indians to make lace by hand. Since that day the art has greatly developed, and in certain of the towns lace-making is the chief occupation. Almost all the women, many children and not a few men are engaged in this industry. A curious fact with reference to the Paraguayan laces is that the designs were borrowed from the strange webs woven by the semitropical spiders that abound in that country. Accordingly this lace is by the natives called nan-duti, which means "spider web."—Exchange.

Cruel.

"I made these Maculitas myself, David," said Mrs. Copperfield, with honest pride.

"They look very nice, I'm sure," replied David, picking one of them up and making an effort to spit it. "And they are still hot. How long ago did you—ah!—cast them?"

Not Unlucky.

"Arry—I've brought yer a ring, 'Arriet. Ain't it a beauty? 'Arriet—Why, it's a opal. 'Arry, and opals is awful unlucky, so they say. 'Arry—You needn't worry yerself oter that a little bit, cos it ain't a real un.—London Express.

Lots of Us Like That.

Uncle John—Willie, if you could have your way, who would you rather be than anybody else? Small Willie—Just me, if I could always have my way.—Chicago News.

Contentment.

Contentment is the sweet satisfaction of knowing that you have more of this world's goods than you can possibly use.—Puck.

Be of good courage. That is the main thing.—Thoreau.

Sheer Waste.

"The coal supply of the earth is limited," said the scientist. "No one can say how long it will last." "Great Scott!" exclaimed a man in the back row; "and here we've gone and wasted more'n a bushel of it heatin' the hall for this lecture."—Washington Star.

Act Misquotation.

The minister was attempting to carve a very tough fowl at the dinner. As he was trying to separate one of the joints it slid out of the dish to the other side of the table. He calmly picked it up and gravely said: "What God hath joined together let no man put asunder."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Good Plan.

Write down a list of things you intend to do in spare time and do not let a week slip away, nor a day, if you can help it, without doing one of them. Each month will bring new interests which will be worth trying to take up.

FROM DAYTONA TO PALM BEACH BY INLAND ROUTE

(By Mrs. H. A. Bernard)

Did you ever plan and plan to take a certain trip and then in an unexpected way fall heir to the coveted opportunity through the courtesy of others?

This is exactly what happened when, on a balmy, cloudless Tuesday morning, January 20, your correspondent embarked on the excursion boat, U. S. A., Captain W. B. McCoy, for a trip to Palm Beach, the mecca of the millionaire tourists who spend part of their winters in Florida.

The steamer left the North Beach street dock with about 50 passengers aboard. Our special party of three included Mrs. M. S. Alford of Denver, Colo., and Mrs. C. A. Conant of Traverse City, Mich., who are spending the season in Daytona and Daytona Beach. With the upper deck crowded with pleasure people, and the forward deck loaded with a big automobile and innumerable trunks and traveling traps, the U. S. A. swung into the channel amid good-byes and handkerchief waves, on schedule time.

We were holiday passengers, in the main, going forth toward the unexplored to seek adventure and we unto those so poor of imagination as to be incapable of magnifying the small incident of the passing hour into happenings of vivid interest. We had our first thrill at Ponce Park at the sight of a shark, and at the inlet were inspired by the sight of the ocean. A couple of passengers taken aboard at New Smyrna aroused interest and speculation. By this time we had passed from the Halifax river through the Oak Hill canal into the Hillsboro river, and its beautiful vistas, numerous coves and islands brought forth many exclamations of delight. It was interesting to watch our stately steamer follow the intricate channel as the sleuth hound follows a trail. There are 12 bodies of water on this trip between Daytona and Palm Beach. From the Hillsboro river we passed into Mosquito lagoon and from thence into the Indian river.

Our first night out was spent at Rockledge, which has a fine dock and the hotel grounds are well lighted, making an attractive picture from the water front. The second day out, the weather continuing ideal, we also spent on the upper deck. We sighted the first coconut palm, and were greatly interested in the myriads of wild ducks and other aquatic fowls, which make the Indian river their feeding grounds. The second night we spent at Fort Pierce. As the boat dropped in shore our attention was called to a long line of small boats, seabright dories, crossing the river inlet from the ocean homeward bound and we were told that they had been out fishing for Spanish mackerel, which is quite an industry at this point.

The third day we had a head wind but made good time, covering 60 miles, which is the shortest day's journey of the three. The trip had become more and more interesting as we advanced southward and entered beautiful Lake Worth. Coconut groves had become common, and still we were taking our seeing capacity to take in the many new and tropical beauties of our surroundings. We reached Palm Beach at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon, a little ahead of schedule time and rounded up at the Palm Beach hotel dock and a little later at the Royal Poinciana dock to land passengers. Our boat then crossed to West Palm Beach, where we found good hotel accommodations. We made the most of our two evenings and one day here, seeing the sights of the Poinciana hotel grounds under the enchantment of a full moon, later in the evening visiting the hotel and resting in the Colonnades while we enjoyed the evening concert by the orchestra. Friday we visited Eden, the Jungle, the Breakers hotel, etc., watched the bathers, and had a ride across the peninsula in the mule car. Saturday morning we left Palm Beach at 8 o'clock, and the trip home was none the less keenly enjoyed than the one out. Monday afternoon, although we had enjoyed the fulfillment of every bright anticipation of a trip long planned yet we were glad to get back to beautiful Daytona, the queen of the Halifax, which had lost none of her many attractions in comparison with brilliant, tropical Palm Beach.

Overcured.

Doctor—"You admit that I cured you of insomnia, then why don't you pay my bill?" Patient—"Sorry, doc, but I sleep so soundly now that my wife goes through my pockets nights and takes every cent."—Boston Transcript.

The Press Publishing Co. (The New York Works)Capt. Kidd—"Sheep or Wolf?"

ASK the average person to name some famous pirate. The chances are two to one that he will say, "Captain Kidd." As a matter of fact, Kidd was a very third rate sort of pirate, not to be compared in villainy, exploits and wealth to dozens of captains who are today forgotten. A doggerel song ("My Name Was Captain Kidd, as I Sailed") and the foolish belief that he buried vast treasures somewhere near New York are the two things that have made Kidd immortal.

In the latter part of the seventeenth century, the American coasts swarmed with pirates who spoiled sea commerce and blocked travel. King William III. of England sent Lord Bellomont to New York as governor, with orders to stamp out piracy. Bellomont liked the idea of combining duty with profit. So, with Robert Livingston and other rich, shrewd New Yorkers, he formed a company to make money out of crushing the pirates. A powerful warship was to be fitted out and sent against the freebooters. They and their plunder were to be seized, and the profits of the enterprise divided between the company and the king.

Next, Bellomont and Livingston looked about for the right sort of man to captain their warship. Livingston suggested a "right worthy and honest mariner," "William Kidd by name. Kidd was the son of a Scotch clergyman who is said to have suffered martyrdom. The "right worthy and honest mariner" had for more than thirty years followed the sea, fighting against England's French foes, thrashing pirates and in many ways proving of use to the colonies. At that time (1696) he had retired and was living quietly in New York.

Kidd was made a shareholder in Bellomont's company, took command of the thirty-gun galley Adventure and set forth on his pirate-chasing task. He bore with him a commission from the king, made out to "our well beloved and trusty William Kidd." After an unimportant capture or two, he vanished. For a time nothing was heard, directly, from him. Then came ugly rumors that shaped themselves into facts.

It seemed that the "well beloved and trusty William Kidd" was doing things that tended to make him neither trusted nor beloved. In short, he and his crew, who had been sent to destroy piracy, had themselves become pirates and were holding up and robbing merchant ships. This news aroused tremendous excitement. Public feeling ran dangerously high. Many people even hinted that Bellomont, Livingston and the rest had secretly formed a piratical company and were only waiting to gather the spoils. Bellomont, thoroughly scared, reported the bad tidings to the king, who received them with horror—real or assumed—and who, in 1698, ordered every British port to be on the lookout for Kidd's capture.

Meanwhile the "well-beloved" Kidd, cruising the Spanish Main, heard of the plan to arrest him. Leaving his large ship near Hayti, he hastened northward in a sloop laden with $70,000 worth of treasure and with a crew of forty. He touched at Oyster Bay, L. I., sent for a New York lawyer and opened negotiations with Bellomont. It is supposed Bellomont sent word that the captain had nothing to fear, for Kidd landed and went on July 1, 1699, to Boston to talk matters over. There Bellomont arrested him and packed him off to England to stand trial. Then the company sent to the pirate sloop and seized the treasure. As Kidd had started out to do such great things the public grew to believe that $70,000 could not represent all his plunder and that he must have buried part of the treasure. There is no reason for thinking so. Yet the rumor has lived for over 200 years.

Kidd, meantime, was placed on trial in England. He denied that he had ever consorted to be a pirate and said his crew had bullied him into it. He could not be convicted of piracy, even by a court which for some mysterious reason rushed his trial through with suspicious haste and lack of justice. But he was found guilty of having killed a mutinous sailor named William Moon by hitting him over the head with a bucket. For this crime Kidd was condemned to death. He was hanged on May 24, 1701, with nine of his crew, at Execution Dock, London.

To this day it cannot be definitely known whether Captain Kidd was a harmless old man, threatened into unwilling piracy by a mutinous crew, or whether he was the blackguard accomplice of a band of financiers who used him for their own ends and then disowned him. The haste and injustice of his trial led some to think his speedy execution was needed to hush a pirate scandal that would have involved some of the highest names in England and in the colonies.

BASKET BALL TONIGHT AT NEW DAYTONA THEATER.

The D. H. S. boys will battle with Capt. Cowan's team tonight at the New Daytona theater. The prospects for a good game are bright and it is hoped that a good crowd will turn out. In their last meeting the high school boys won from the town team by a score of 13 to 5, but Cowan's men are out for victory and a good game may be expected. The game will be called at 8 p. m., and will be followed by a game between the Reds and Blues, girls' teams. No admission will be charged, but a collection will be taken up after the game to defray the expenses.

Marriage a Failure?

The statisticians inform us that there is an increasing tendency toward divorce, but the very worst divorce tables show that 12 couples out of every 100 get divorced within 20 years of the marriage day. But only look at this statement from another angle. There are 88 couples who do not get divorced. And so, is marriage a failure? Hardly!

Collector Booth reported to the council that over $4,000 in occupation licenses had been collected in the city this year, and that there remains about $800 yet to be collected. City Marshal Melton has been busy the past week investigating what occupation license taxes have been paid and unpaid and in several instances threats to bring the offenders into the mayor's court had the desired effect.

A request from Charles L. Smith that his name be restored to the city registration books was laid on the table to give the council an opportunity to learn whether that body has any authority to take such action. City Clerk A. McF. Porter presented the request with the statement that Mr. Smith had refused to sign the oath, which states that the signer has been a resident of the state for 12 months previous and the county for six months previous.

A communication from the City Island Park and Library association was presented asking that the council make an allowance for the improvement and maintenance of the city island park for the year 1913. The request was referred to the finance committee.

The city clerk was requested to break the seals and empty all ballot boxes of over six months standing. City Sanitary Inspector Gettes Long reported collections amounting to $186 for the past month, and that practically all sanitary bills have now been paid.

The street committee was authorized to ask for bids for improvement and extension work on First street, Orange avenue and South Beach street.

Do You Know?

A professor of anatomy at Yale College was asked by a boy the other day why boys were not born with 10 toes on each foot, and the wise man couldn't answer. Most men, after they get to be men, are satisfied with five toes on a foot, but a boy really ought to be allowed 10. With only five on a foot he now slips back while climbing a tree to steal apples. We move that the extra toes be provided before another summer.

Mirage Easy to Be Seen.
The celebrated Pata Morgana, a presentation of natural "moving pictures" on an immense scale which is occasionally seen in the Straits of Messina, is explained by a scientific writer as being a mirage, such as frequently occurs in various parts of the world; "in fact," he says, "one may see a mirage any day by looking through the stratum of air overlying a hot stove, or adjacent to the side of a wall heated in the sunshine." Young scientists will be interested in verifying this statement.

Divided Nest.
A North Westmorland (England) farmer recently came across a very unusual sight. In the course of his rounds through his fields he found a nest with 25 eggs in it. The large number was not the only marvel, for on examining the eggs, he found that 15 of them belonged to a pheasant, and the remaining ten to a partridge. The pheasant, as the stronger bird, was the probable intruder.

Heredity.
Some very pretty things are being said, for no special reason whatever, about genealogy and heredity. Naturally this is associated with the names and life of what is called the "nobility." Yet no commentator has quoted the couplet of Pope, which reads rawly that "His ancient but ignoble blood has crept through scoundrels ever since the flood."

Perfected Dish Washer.
The invention of a Chicago hotel steward fills a long felt want. It is a machine that will wash and dry 18,000 dishes in an hour. Moreover, it needs the supervision and help of only two persons.

TWO MIAMI MEN CHARGED WITH ROBBING WRECKED SHIP*ALLEGED MEN VISITED WRECK OF HANNAH M. BELL AS SAL-
VORS BUT MADE NO REPORT OF SAVINGS.

Indictments charging them with having plundered the wreck of the British steamship, Hannah M. Bell, on Elbow reef, in May, 1911, have been returned by the grand jury at Ocala against George F. Cook and Captain Samuel Freas of Miami. Immediately after the indictments were returned instruments were sent to Deputy United States Marshal Harry O. Houston, at Miami, to arrest the two men and take them before the United States commissioner and give them the privilege of putting up bonds for their appearance in United States district court for trial. Bonds were fixed at $1,000 each. Court will set in Miami April 28.

The indictments charge Mr. Cook and Captain Freas with having plundered and stolen from the wreck of the Hannah M. Bell a quantity of cargo and machinery belonging to the wrecked steamer, the papers in the case stating that they "plundered from the wreck of the British steamer, Hannah M. Bell, two steam winches, etc., being part of the machinery of the said wreck."

It is alleged that the two defendants went to the wreck of the steamer as salvors, but they made no report of the salvage secured. Investigation by a special agent of the department of justice, who filed the information, disclosed the alleged fact that the defendants saved certain articles from the wreck, among them being the two steam winches.

Upon the filing of the information the matter was set for hearing at the Jacksonville term of court, but no action was taken prior to the finding of the indictments by the federal grand jury at Ocala.

*The February Butterick patterns are now on sale at the "Hat Shop," Mrs. C. M. Watermann.

"Dad." "Daddy" were well known in this country in the sixteenth century; "papa" did not come in, borrowed from abroad, until the seventeenth century was well advanced. Florio, at the end of the former century, defined the Italian "pappa" as "the first word that children are taught to call their father, as ours say 'daddy,' 'daddy' or 'papa.' " "Dad" seems to be the commoner to mankind of the two. Nauticals in the "collyer" calls her father "pappa phile," dear papa; but Greek has "tata" also, and Welsh has "tat," and Irish "daddy."

Gentle Criticism.
On one occasion Hans Richter was present at a concert given by a brother composer, at which the latter performed a long and not particularly interesting work of his own. When the composition came to an end Richter expressed his criticism in a very few words. "Well," he said, "I too had written compositions to make a pile so high," raising his hand three feet from the ground; "but I had buried them!"

Stabbed by Umbrella.
Perhaps the strangest weapon ever used for killing was an umbrella. In October, 1908, a man named Ernest Smith was found dead in Chiswick street, England. He had a punctured wound in the eye which the doctors agreed had undoubtedly been caused by the steel ferrule of an umbrella.

Chin Vegetal.
Vegetable fibre, or chin vegetal, is made from leaves of a dwarf palm (Chamaerops humilis), which clings to the soil tenaciously. Its presence was a serious obstacle to the pioneers of Algerian colonization, and it had to be fought foot by foot. It was not then known that the plant would become a source of wealth to the colony and that it would be more and more sought as a commercial product.

Self-Confidence.
"Self-confidence is not egotism. It is knowledge, and it comes from the consciousness of possessing the ability requisite for what one undertakes. Civilization today rests upon self-confidence."—Orison Swett Marden.

Resort in the World

Watch It Grow

Watch it through the columns of The Daytona Gazette-News. It is published every Saturday the year 'round. More than a million dollars in improvements in Daytona and vicinity have been made during the past year and many large undertakings are laid out for the coming season, and you will want, of course, to keep abreast with the progress of the community.

It gives you more local news than all local papers of Volusia combined. Many of the little personals about persons with whom you are acquainted will interest you.

FOOTBALLS.

They Are Not Made of Piskin and the "Bladders" Are Rubber.

When you refer to football players as piskin players, state that football can beat the piskin, you display considerable ignorance, said a member of a firm which manufactures the spheres used on many of the big and little grids.

For the football is not made of piskin at all, in fact, no part of the lowly but huckster's sphere enters into its construction.

Football covers are made from the material that goes to make your best shoes—calfskin. And only the very best grade of skin is used for good balls. Cheap balls, such as kids buy at the corner store, are made of sheepskin. The bladder which is in the ball is rubber.

A visit to the factory where the greatest number of footballs are turned out elicits more interesting information. For instance, a shop sign says that the reason the ball is called piskin is that in the old days a pig's bladder was used to give buoyancy to the ball. The bladder has been discarded and rubber substituted.

The regulation intercollegiate ball weighs from thirteen and one-quarter to fourteen ounces. The soccer ball weighs from thirteen to fifteen ounces. Skins for football covers are carefully inspected and are sent to the factory after special treatment. The slightest flaw in a hide means rejection.

In the cutting room skill is required to prevent waste. Cutting is done with machinery. The cutter divides the hide into as many oval sections as possible and sends the pieces to the girls who take up the next stage, which consists of carefully lining the leather with cotton twill. This is the only work entrusted to girls. It is slow and must be done perfectly.

The liners are stitched together on one machine and the covers on another. From the last machine the covers come wrong side out, and the better grades are reversed by hand. The cheaper are turned right side out by machinery.

Turning a football cover by hand requires great strength. Some men do nothing else and as a result become exceptionally strong of hand, wrist and arm.

The rubber bladder is inserted, and when inflated the oval begins to look like the finished product now seen on many fields, but the ball is not ready for delivery. It is stamped on a hot press and "worked" until its outer surface is ready for the kickoff.

Although the game has changed greatly, the ball remains about the same as the old Rugby.

Changed Times.

In a meadow a half dozen young women golf players were practicing putting. They looked very smart in their trim golf suits, their skirts of rough homespun and their scarlet jackets. An old farmer and one of his farm hands approached.

"Boss," grumbled the farm hand, "them girls in the meadow is scarin' our cows."

The old farmer shook his head and sighed.

"Ah, Timothy," he said with profound truth, "times is changed since I was young. In them days the cows scared the girls."—Washington Star.

The Troubles of a Giant.

George Cumberland saw the famous giant Obrian Boro in the Strand in London in 1784, and in "The Cumberland Letters," edited by Clementina Black, gives this note on him: "His hand, from the ball of his thumb, actually measures eleven inches and a half and is large in proportion. When I stood up I could just with my forefinger touch the bottom of his chin—in a word, he is eight feet three inches high, and his bones are in proportion large—but the poor devil seems to be dying for want of air and exercise. He is nineteen years of age and expects to be nine feet high."

Curious Russian Law.

Russia has a law which to outside observers seems almost to put a premium on theft by which stolen goods become the property of the thief if he can prove that he has had possession of them for over five years. In the thieves' market—which is, of course, licensed by the police—goods that admittedly have been stolen (more than five years before) are openly offered for sale, and the place is a veritable Mecca for the light-fingered gentry and their enterprising friends, as also for the more honest members of society, who secure many a tempting bargain.

An Even Break.

Mrs. Jinks—You've spent fourteen mortal hours and $35 and what have you got to show for it? One hat worth about $3.50. Mrs. Jinks—True. And last week you spent five days and $115, and what have you got to show for it? One fish story about a big trout that got away and an awful cold in your head.—Country Gentleman.

An Important Man.

"Always boasting, eh?" "Yes; everything connected with him is always in the superlative. Even when he had a cataract on his eye it was a regular Niagara."—Kansas City Journal.

Same Thing.

Gillet—See here! Did you tell Bodo I'd been cheated again? Perry—No; I merely said you had made another of your characteristic investments.—London Mail.

Do not allow idleness to deceive you, for while you give him today he steals tomorrow from you.—Crowquill.

IN THE REALM OF FASHION

Smart Walking Dress.

The model in the illustration wears a smart jacket that suggests the Norfolk coat. A belt extends across the back and passes through slits at the side.

BLUE SERGE SUIT.

fastening beneath the front of the coat. The material of the suit is of blue serge.

The collar and cuffs are of black velvet. Dull gold buttons fasten the front. Worn with this costume is a large flat hat of blue felt and black velvet.

FABRIC FASHIONS FOR SPRING.

Materials That May Predominate In Next Season's Gowns.

In speaking of spring styles the Dry Goods Economist says:

It is the consensus of opinion among manufacturers that tailored effects will lead in the orders for delivery during the first three months of the new year. For this reason the cotton materials which lend themselves most favorably to these styles are featured, such as satines in the plain, checked and plaid varieties, linens largely of ruche weave, cotton, corduroy, voiles, crepes and fancy cotton stuffs.

There is more interest shown in pongee than has been evidenced for the last few seasons, some of the newest models showing the white and printed effects combined.

In silks there is strong fashion endorsement for crepes de chine, crepe meteoires also being fairly popular. Moire, faille and bengaline are used largely for trimming effects. They also appear in the higher priced merchandise for novelty garments.

In regard to the popular priced merchandise there is a tendency to combine fashionable coloring with white. By way of illustration mention is made of a white linen dress having the waist and skirt yoke section of blue, rose tan, gray or lavender, the skirt, collar and cuffs being made of the white linen.

Other advance models show a short cutaway coat effect brought out in colored linen over the white skirt, the trimmings on the waist also being white. Still other white dresses show only a touch of color, this trimming effect being noted in the embroidered designs on the waist, in the collars, cuffs, buttons and belts. Colored linens bid fair to be quite popular in the medium shades of blue, tan, mustard, rose, wistaria and other colorings in favor this season.

In ratines the color appears in the small checked, plaid or striped designs, blue, tan and black being mostly used.

As to voiles, the soft shadings are usually seen in the wide embroidery designs, these often taking the form of the forty-five inch bounces. Rose, yellow, various shades of blue, lavender and purple are used on the white, plain or crepe voiles, and in some cases a combination of colors is employed in the embroidery, thus giving a decidedly oriental effect.

Cotton corduroys and piques show mostly the solid color or white for the whole dress, with the exception of small cord trimmings of white on color or colored cords on white.

A Delightful Dinner Party.

Thackeray liked to dine alone at the Star and Garter, a famous host.

Richardson, near London. Harry P. nose, whose fame as an illustrator is international, in speaking of this peculiarity of the novelist said: "An old acquaintance of mine, Sir James O'Dowd, a great friend of Thackeray's, told me that Thackeray often drove all alone to the Star and Garter and went solemnly through an elaborate course dinner and returned to town in his carriage, still in solitary state. O'Dowd happened to be dining one evening at the Star and Garter in another room and, striding into the larger one, came across Thackeray, screened off from the other diners and just finishing his elaborate repast."

"Well, Thackeray," he said, "you are an extraordinary man—here all alone when you must have known any or all of us would have kept you company."

"All alone? My dear O'Dowd," cried Thackeray, "I alone? Why, I have had the best of companions a man could entertain. Becky has just left, and Penderennis, Colonel Newcome and I have had a delightful evening. The colonel has not had such a jolly tuck-in for years."

Knew a Bigger One.

A couple of young military officers were dining together at a restaurant one night, and the conversation became a discussion on lies and lying generally, and finally there was a warm debate as to who was the biggest liar known to them. An old gentleman sitting at a table near was unable to avoid overhearing the discussion, and after a few minutes he rose and came over to their table.

"I have just heard you decide, gentlemen," he said gravely, "that Lieutenant Arthur Blank is the biggest liar you have ever met. I am his father."

After a few seconds' embarrassed silence one of the young officers began to stammer apologies, but the old man waved them aside.

"No, no," he said; "don't apologize. It's quite unnecessary. I was only going to say that if you regard my son Arthur as the biggest liar you have met you cannot possibly have met my other son, Richard."—London Answer.

"To the Bitter End."

The derivation of the often used phrase "to the bitter end" is explained by a writer in the New York Sun as follows:

It is a nautical term. If you have ever been on a big ship you must have noticed two large pieces of timber sticking up out of the deck forward, alongside each other. They sometimes have a windlass between them, and they are used to secure the anchor cable. These pieces of wood are called the "bits."

When the ship comes to anchor and the cable is paid out all that part of it which is aloft or behind the bits is called the "bitter end of the cable." In a storm or in poor holding ground for the anchors the more cable that is paid out the better the anchor will hold, and when the captain is at all doubtful he pays out his cable to the "bitter end" sooner than risk any harm to his ship.

What He Gained.

Mrs. Smith was grieved and disappointed at the conduct of her son Robert. She called him into her presence and questioned him gravely as to his latest enormity.

"Mrs. Hayes tells me that you tied a tin can to her dog's tail," she said.

"Yes, mother."

"What a shameful thing to do!"

"Yes, ma'am."

"Do you know that the poor dog ran away so far that he has never come back—that he probably ran himself to death?"

"Yes, ma'am."

"Oh, Robert! What do you gain by such cruelty?"

"I caught a dollar from Mr. Hayes."

—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Our First Fox Hunters.

The first hunt club organized in America was the Gloucester Fox Hunting club, formed by about 125 gentlemen of Philadelphia. The first meeting was held in December, 1760, in the old Philadelphia coffee house. Men who later became famous in the country's history were among its members. The Revolutionary war for a time put a stop to the sport, when Samuel Morris and twenty-one others of the club organized the First City troop. This old Gloucester club survived for fifty-two years, until 1812.—Argonaut.

Sheer Waste.

Sir Archibald Geikie tells a story of a Scotchman who, much against his own will, was persuaded to take a holiday. He went to Egypt and visited the pyramids. After gazing for some time at the great pyramid he muttered, "Man, what a lot of mason work not to be bringin' in any rent!"

INTERESTING RIDES AND DRIVES POINTS WORTH VISITING

OCEAN BEACH—excellent bathing north for 19 miles and south, 15 miles to Mosquito inlet and the Government Lighthouse at Ponce Park. The beach is the most magnificent in the world.

BEED, KNOX & BEED ORANGE GROVE—18 miles, via Ormond, one of the largest groves in Volusia county and is well worth seeing; can be reached by motor over fairly good road; can also be reached by boat.

NUMBER NINE ORANGE GROVE—a large grove, passed on the way to the Beed, Knox & Beed grove, is 12 miles from Daytona.

NEW SMYRNA—16 miles from Daytona, over an excellent hard surface road; this drive is said to be the prettiest in the state. At New Smyrna are the ruins of an ancient fort and other historical spots, left by the colony of Andrew Turnbull.

OLD SPANISH MISSION—1 mile west of New Smyrna, reached by motor over good road. This mission is without authentic history but by many it is concluded that this is the church built by Columbus on his second voyage to America. The altar is still extant, but at a later date the building was used as a sugar mill.

SPANISH SUGAR MILL—2 miles west of Port Orange and about 1 mile from Daytona; the machinery is still in a good state of preservation, although the mill is presumed to have been built and operated by the early Spanish settlers.

GOVERNMENT LIGHTHOUSE—at Ponce Park, 12 miles from Daytona is reached by boat or by motor on the ocean beach.

MAMMOTH TREE—4 miles from Daytona; an abnormally large tree, reached by motor over hard surfaced road.

DELAND—25 miles from Daytona; the county seat of Volusia county and seat of John B. Stetson university; a very picturesque city, reached by motor over hard surfaced road.

TOMOKA RIVER—The scenic stream of Florida; reached by excursion boats which leave Daytona daily and run to the navigable head of the stream, 26 miles from the city. Generally a number of alligators may be seen in their native haunts. This is a trip no tourist should miss.

DELEON SPRINGS, 28 miles from Daytona; mammoth spring that throws out thousands of gallons of water a minute; a delightful bathing pool, and picturesque scenery. Spring is situated in an old plantation. Reached by motor over good road; a nice trip for a picnic party.

OAK HILL—hamlet, 10 miles south of New Smyrna; several orange groves in the locality; reached by motor over hard-surfaced road.

ORMOND—six miles from Daytona; here is located the Ormond hotel and a pretty town; nearby are the ruins of Spanish sugar mills.

TURTLE MOUND—26 miles south of Daytona; reached by boat; a mammoth mound of oyster shells supposed to have been left by a prehistoric race of people. Pottery and other antiquities have been discovered in excavating the shell.

PORT ORANGE—an attractive town 6 miles south of Daytona, can be reached by motor over hard-surfaced road; or the trip one way may be made by the road and crossing the Halifax river on the Port Orange bridge, the return can be made on the ocean beach.

CLARENDON GOLF LINKS—2 miles from Daytona and immediately north of the Hotel Clarendon at Seabreeze; the links are now in good condition. The Hotel Clarendon bears the distinction of being the only fireproof winter tourist hotel in the world.

GENERALLY, you may motor in any direction from Daytona and find places and objects of interest which your driver can explain to you; there are many by-roads through the sylvan vegetation that a visitor will greatly enjoy.

FORAKER HOME IN CAPITAL
BOUGHT BY MRS. BLODGETT

WOMAN WELL KNOWN IN DAYTONA
NA PURCHASES BEAUTIFUL
RESIDENCE IN WASHINGTON
RECENTLY.

The following from the Washington Times is of much interest to the people of this city and vicinity, as Mrs. Blodgett owns a beautiful winter home in Daytonia:

"The largest transaction in residence property in many months is the sale of former Senator Foraker's residence at 1500 Sixteenth street, northwest, to Mrs. Delos A. Blodgett, of Grand Rapids, Mich., which was consummated during the week.

"Few residences in the city were designed on such lavish plans, especially on the interior, as the Foraker residence. Paul J. Pelz, the architect of the building, who is also the designer of the Library of Congress, the Healy building of the Georgetown university, and other notable structures, considers the Foraker house the finest residence for which he has ever drawn plans.

"There are four stories, a basement and an attic. The ground floor was designed to meet the special needs of Senator Foraker's political duties. There are six large reception rooms on the Sixteenth street side, and on the P street side are the private offices of the senator and his secretary. The kitchen is also on this floor.

"A magnificent stairway leads to the second floor of the building. The entire front of fifty feet on this floor is occupied by a ball room, and adjoining this are the reception room and library. A large state dining room and a private dining room occupy the remaining space on this floor.

"The third and fourth floors are devoted to family living rooms, bed rooms and baths. A large attic with as much floor space as any of the other floors is one of the features.
A special feature of the exterior architecture of the building is a colonnade
on the P street side, forming a balcony from the main floor. The wood work was all specially provided by Pottier and Stymus, of New York. Mr Pelz gave personal supervision to the construction, which was done by Thomas C. Henderson."

The above article in the times is accompanied by a double column picture of the superb home where Mrs. Blodgett will dispense characteristic hospitality not outdone by any in the great national capital.

MEETING A GHOST

Old Tom Came Face to Face With It Between Decks.

SCARED THE SAILOR STIFF.

Then When He Got Wind Enough to Yell There Was a Lively Time
Aboard the Old Sailing Vessel Till a Mate Ended the Mystery.

Of course there is no reason why ghosts should not be found on shipboard as often as elsewhere. As a matter of fact, Jack, who is always superstitious, sees his full share of apparitions. This amusing story, told by the ghost himself, is found in Captain John D. Whidden's "Ocean Life In the Old Sailing Days."

Whidden, a boy of thirteen, was making his first voyage. The ship was hardly clear of land when a heavy storm set in. Whidden was feeling wretched and in carrying breakfast to the fore-cabin upst a pan of hot scum on the head of "old Tom" at the foot of the companionway stairs. The cutting he and for this did not make him feel any better. An hour or two later, when the men were sent aloft, the boy slipped down the booby hatch and was soon fast asleep among some rope, canvas and oakum that were piled against the forward bulkhead next the forecas-tle.

When he awoke it was dark, but light streaming through some anger holes in the bulkhead and the sound of voices brought him to his senses. He was surprised to hear the crew talking about him, as if he were dead, and discussing the manner in which he had been swept overboard. He heard old Tom say, "Well, I'm sorry I hit him, but the cub sailed every spear of hair
out of my head."

He had another long sleep. When he awoke he heard the crew washing down decks and realized that he was perfectly well and very hungry. He found a barrel of apples in the lower hold. Billed his pocket and shirt bosom, climbed back into his nest, ate apples
and went to sleep again.

The next day old Tom was sent below to cut a piece of rope from the coils among which Whidden was hiding. While he was sawing at the rope, the boy, disturbed by the noise, peeped out of the coil of hawser in which he lay and met Tom's glance.

"With whitened face and bulging eyes," says Mr. Whidden, "he gazed at me a moment, then dropping rope and knife and emitting a series of blood curdling yells he dashed for the booby hatch and disappeared on deck.
Every one was aroused. I heard the second mate ask, 'What's broke loose with you?' and all old Tom could ejaculate was, 'I've seen him! I've seen him!'"

"Seen who?" yelled Mr. Fabens.
"Oh, the boy's ghost! the boy's ghost!" Old Tom was nearly frightened out of his wits.

"Mr. Fabens," said the captain, "get a lantern, take that fellow below and see what scared him."
"So Mr. Fabens descended the ladder with half the crew at his back, and old Tom bringing up the rear. As they came forward the mate called out:
'Where's your ghost? I don't see any ghost!'"

"Until now I had lain quiet, but feeling that I was discovered I rose up to step out of the coil. Tom gave another yell and broke for the hatch ladder, followed by half the men.

"Mr. Fabens came up, reached over, lifted me out by the collar and marched me on deck, where I was at once surrounded by officers and crew.
"Captain King stepped forward and said, 'Well, boy, where have you been for the last forty-eight hours?'"

"Between decks, sir," I sheepishly answered.

"What have you been doing between decks?"

"Sleeping, sir."

"What, sleeping two days and nights?"

"Not all the time, sir," I replied.

"Had anything to eat?"

"Apples," I ventured.

"Where did you get the apples?"

"Out of the hold, sir. I got the head out of a barrel."

"Oh, you did! Do you know you've been broaching cargo?" and then, thinking the farce had gone far enough, for all hands were on the broad grin, he said, sternly:
"Now go forward, boy, and if you cut any more capers like that, you'll get a rope's ending you'll remember all your life." Then, to Mr. Fabens, he added, "Keep him up in his day watch below for a week and give him plenty of work."

"That ended his lecture, and I was glad it was over and that I had escaped so easily. Going forward with the men, I was pleased to see they bore me no ill feeling, not even Tom, although he might have been excused if he had done so."

Uncompromising.

John Bright's voice was unequivocally for peace. Says the London Nation:
He was walking once past the Crimean monument in London with one of his sons, then a lad. Every one knows that the word "Crimes" is engraved on the monument. The boy pointed to the monument and to the word upon it and asked:
"Father, what is that?"
"That," said John Bright, pointing also to the word, "is a crime."

It is well there is no one without a fault, for he would not have a friend in the world.—Hazlitt.

STATE
HAPPENINGS

News from Fair Florida Briefly Told

It is stated that the acreage in watermelons in Orange county will be the largest in years.

Within the next few days Lawley will be shipping large quantities of strawberries to the northern markets.

The Florida State Medical association will meet in Miami this year beginning the second Tuesday in May. The convention will hold for three days.

An old time fiddler's convention will be held at Zephyrhills on the 6th of next month. Three prizes have been offered to the fiddlers who furnish the best old time music.

Major R. M. Hankins of Tampa, has been appointed assistant quartermaster general of the Florida brigade,

tridge, brigadier commander.

Two white men who, it is alleged,
broke into the United Supply company's store at Hawthorne last Thursday, were taken to the Alachua county jail Saturday by Chief Deputy W.
T. Bruton. The men were arrested at Starke on Friday, after giving officers a lively chase for two days.
They admit being in Hawthorne, but deny breaking into the store.

C. W. Ryall, a prominent resident of Sebastian, died last Saturday from the effects of a rattlesnake bite.
Mr. Ryall was hunting in the woods several miles from home when the deadly reptile sank its poisoned fangs into his flesh. His strong constitution kept him alive about 11 hours.
Mr. Ryall leaves a family at Sebastian.

Officer W. H. Waits located a busy skin game Saturday afternoon about 3 o'clock, on Gas street, near the Seaboard depot, and assisted by W.
G. Richardson, rounded up eight gamblers and one alleged bling tiger operator. Hardy White is the party who will be asked to plead to a charge of selling intoxicating beverages. The parties are colored.—Gainesville Sun.

D. H. Coggsall of West Gro-has already bought other factories in south Florida, and will probably buy others. The deal for the local factory while not fully consummated, has reached that point where the sale is about ready to be confirmed. It is given out that no change is contemplated in the management or in the operating force, but the capacity of the plant will be doubled by the installation of additional machinery and a one-thousand-ton storage plant will be put in, all to be done by the first of June of this year.—Punta Gorda Herald.

"A stock company has been formed that will commence work in a ver-short time and make Worthington Springs, in Bradford county, one of the prettiest summer resorts in the south," says the Starke Telegraph.
The paper goes on to tell that the company will be capitalized at about $500,000 and that it is proposed to spend about $200,000 in improvements which will include the erection of a large hotel and completion of work enclosing the spring, building spring house and laying out the property, which consists of 360 acres, into lots and parks. Worthington Springs is a beautiful place near Starke and will easily be made popular by the erection of a hotel and the bringing in
of a summer colony.

Editor's Mean Revenge.

An editor who was courting a woman of uncertain age, but positive bank account, was cut out by a gentleman from a neighboring town, who married her and took her home. Whereupon the editor sought a mean revenge by heading account of her wedding: "Another Old Resident Gone."

APPEAL MADE TO GOVERNMENT
AS LOCAL AID IS INADEQUATE

CREVASSE AT BEULAH GROWS

AND THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE

ARE COMPELLED TO CAMP ON

THE HILLS.

VICKSBURG, Miss., Jan. 26.—Pan-

the faces thousands of persons in the inundated sections as a result of the breaking of the levee at Beulah.

Many of the flood victims have been without food for two days and the suffering is appalling.

An appeal is now being made to the federal government for aid.

Many of the people have lost everything and are camping on the hills without fire, food or shelter.

Local aid is entirely inadequate.

The crevasse at Beulah is growing wider and the rush of water is irresistible as the river continues to rise above.

G. L. Gandy, who has been in this city and at points down the coast for a month past, left Monday afternoon on his return to Mt. Auburn, Ill.
Mr. Gandy spent last winter here in company with his family and will come to Daytona again next season, having decided there is no place on the East Coast equal to this city for spending the whole season.

year old daughter of Mrs. A. M.
Harrison, died yesterday, following an operation Sunday for appendicitis.
Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Bingham & Maley company undertaking parlors and the interment will be made in Pinewood cemetery. The little girl was taken ill Friday and Sunday it was deemed necessary to operate, which was done Sunday evening, but she failed to recover and passed away at 11 o'clock last night.

PEDDLERS COMING.

Two headline fun peddlers, singers, dancers and entertainers, the best in their lines, are coming to the New Daytona Theatre next Thursday and Friday. Charles Gano and "No-dodemus" (Nick Glynn), the premier comedians of Coburn's Greater Minstrels. Everyone remembers happy, laughing, jocular, Charley Gano, last season on his first trip south with Manager Coburn. There never was a comedian like him. He was a tremendous hit. He is returning with new songs, new jokes, new comedy,
and opposite him is "Nododemus" Glynn, quaint, droll, uproariously funny. (Last season with Al G. Fieldy).
Back of them is an entirely new show
new people, new music, everything
new. And back of them all is Manager "Joe" Coburn, courteous, progressive, and giving the people their money's worth. You all know him and his company—its a clean, first-class, musical, laughable, fun show.
Don't forget the date.

*WANTED—Clean, white cotton rags at Gazette-News office.

Miss Ruby B. Wilson, daughter of J. L. Wilson of Baker street, arrived Sunday from Chicago, Ill., and is with her sister, Mrs. H. Eugene Johnson, at her home on Fairview avenue. Miss Wilson, who is a graduate nurse, spends the time
here with members of the family,
when not engaged.
